

Karah FOSTER

M.S., CF-SLP
Clinical Fellow, Speech Language Pathologist

English

With Triumph since: 2024

Karah embarked on her academic journey at Radford University for her undergraduate degree before pursuing her Master's Degree at the University of the District of Columbia. She hails from Virginia. Her passion for this field ignited during volunteer work, propelling her towards a career dedicated to positive impact.

Enthusiastic about aiding children across all age groups, Karah holds a special interest in addressing feeding and swallowing disorders, as well as communication difficulties stemming from congenital and acquired brain injuries. Her hands-on experience through educational and clinical placements in schools, outpatient settings, and skilled nursing facilities has finely honed her clinical skills and professional development, enabling her to provide the most effective care.

As Karah embarks on her journey as a Speech-language Pathologist, her commitment to making a meaningful difference in the lives of those she serves remains unwavering.

“A change is brought about because ordinary people do extraordinary things.”
– Barack Obama

FUN FACT: The eleventh grandchild out of fifteen. D1 Track and Field Athlete. Watches Christmas movies year-round.

Top 3 Favorite Things
Philly Cheesesteak	Cooking new recipes	The Pittsburgh Steelers